

10/09/11 - Apple Cake with Caramel

Yom Kippur was winding down yesterday, the last of the sun's rays fading from the stained glass windows in the temple; my feet tired from standing during the Neilah service, my thoughts turned to the menu for the break-the-fast party my sister-in-law makes every year. It's a dairy party, bagels, lox, cream cheese and an array of salads brought by friends and neighbors. I contributed vegetable lasagna and this Apple Cake with Caramel. [\[click to continue...\]](#)

